

Cosmology with Type Ia supernovae

Searching for systematics and model independent reconstructions

Hanwool Koo (KASI/UST), Arman Shafieloo (KASI/UST) et al.

hkoo@kasi.re.kr, shafieloo@kasi.re.kr

17 November 2020

KMI School 2020

For more detail, see the online poster and

Koo et al. 2020, ApJ, 899, 9 (arXiv:2001.10887)

Kazantzidis et al. 2020, arXiv:2010.03491

Koo et al. 2020, arXiv:2009.12045

Summary

- Light-curve hyperparameter constraints from the JLA data show no model dependence nor redshift evolution
- 4-5% of Pantheon-like simulations have similar oscillatory features with that in the Pantheon data (systematics or new physics?)
- Newly developed non-parametric approach for model selection and parameter estimation works well (confronting with Bayesian analysis)